Kurgo™ Relocates Headquarters

- Kurgo™ Moves its Head Office in Order To Better Serve Steady Increase of Customers and Expanding Product Line -

Salisbury, MA. – The developer of several popular and convenient dog friendly travel products has buckled up and moved its headquarters. Kurgo™ has relocated its offices and warehouse to Salisbury, Massachusetts, from Newburyport, MA.

The move is designed to help meet the daily needs of a growing company and the ever expanding demand for Kurgo™ products such as the Auto Zip Line, recently named a Consumer's Digest "Best Buy" in the pet category.

"We're very pleased with the positive directions Kurgo™ is taking," said Kurgo™ President Gordon Spater. "The move to a bigger facility will help us better accommodate our distributors, retailers and ultimately our customers."

In addition, the company has opened up a west coast distribution center in Long Beach, California.

The company's move comes after successful launchings of the Auto Zip Line™ and the Backseat Barrier™ and several new products about to be introduced to the public.
